Turkey launches military operation in Syria

Civilians flee Syrian border towns as Turkish warplanes, artillery kick off offensive

Turkey attacked Kurdish militia positions in northeast Syria on Wednesday, pounding them with air strikes and artillery barrages in a cross-border military operation just days after U.S. troops pulled back from the area.

Thousands of people fled the Syrian town of Ras al-Ain toward Hasaka province, held by the Kurdish-led Syrian Democratic Forces. The Turkish air strikes had killed two civilians and wounded two others, the SDF said.

Turkish President Tayyip Erdogan, announcing the start of the action, said the aim was to eliminate what he called a "terror corridor" on Turkey's southern border.

But U.S. President Donald Trump, who ordered the U.S. pullout last week in an abrupt policy shift, said the offensive was "a bad idea" and he did not endorse it. He expected Turkey to protect civilians and religious minorities and to prevent a humanitarian crisis, he said.

"The United States does not endorse this attack and has made it clear to Turkey that this operation is a bad idea," Trump said in a statement released Wednesday morning. "There are no American soldiers in the area. From the first day I entered the political arena, I made it clear that I did not want to fight these endless, senseless wars - especially those that don't benefit the United States."

European countries called on Ankara to halt the operation and Egypt called it "a blatant and unacceptable attack on a brotherly Arab state."

Turkey had been poised to enter northeast Syria since the U.S. troops who had been fighting with Kurdish-led forces against Islamic State started to leave in what Trump critics called a betrayal of Washington's allies.

A Turkish security source told Reuters the military offensive, dubbed "Operation Peace Spring," opened with air strikes. Turkish howitzer fire then hit bases and ammunition depots of the Kurdish YPG militia.

The artillery strikes, which also targeted YPG gun and sniper positions, were aimed at sites far from residential areas, the source said.

World powers fear the Turkish action could open a new chapter in Syria's eight-year-old war and worsen regional turmoil. REUTERS

Two killed in shooting at synagogue in Germany, suspects flee in hijacked car

Two people were killed in shooting attacks on a synagogue and a nearby kebab shop in the eastern German city of Halle on Wednesday and one suspect was arrested, but two others fled in a hijacked car, officials said.

The violence occurred on Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the calendar in Judaism when Jews fast, seeking atonement. Broadcaster n-tv reported that two people were seriously injured in the attack, in addition to the two killed.

The two suspects on the loose headed out on a motorway that leads to Munich in the country's south, according to the mayor of the town of Landsberg, adjacent to Halle. Gunfire was also heard in Landsberg, Focus Online reported.

A spokeswoman for the Halle municipal government said one shooting took place in front of the synagogue on Humboldt street and its accompanying cemetery, while a second burst of gunfire targeted the kebab bistro in the city in the province of Saxony.

Max Privorozki, Halle's Jewish community chairman, described how a gunman tried to shoot his way into the city's synagogue.

"We saw via the camera system at our synagogue that a heavily-armed perpetrator with a steel helmet and a gun tried to shoot open our doors," he told the Stuttgarter Zeitung newspaper. "The man looked like he was from the special forces.... But our doors held."

"We barricaded the doors from inside and waited for the police," he said, adding that about 70-80 people were inside the Humboldt street synagogue celebrating Yom Kippur.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel's government voiced outrage over the attack on Yom Kippur and urged tougher action against anti-Semitic violence.

"That on the Day of Atonement a synagogue was shot at hits us in the heart," Foreign Minister Heiko Maas wrote on Twitter. "We must all act against anti-Semitism in our country."

The identities of the dead and injured were not immediately known. REUTERS

MTA report says subway speeds should be increased by 50 percent

Subways are running slower than 20 years ago.

DANA SCHULZ
letters@metro.us

In June, Governor Cuomo advocated for an MTA task force that would specifically address issues related to subway speeds. After an initial analysis, the Speed and Safety Task Force found that subways in 2019 were running slower than they did 20 years ago due in large part to a flawed signal system and deficient posting of speed limits. Using that information, the Task Force released this week its preliminary findings, which note that "train speeds could be increased by as much as 50 percent" if these issues are fixed.

The initial study of the Task Force looked at tracks from 14th Street to 34th Street Penn Station on the 1,2,3 trains and the Manhattan stretch of the 7 train.

But it's not as simple as just speeding up trains. The Daily News obtained a copy of the report, compiled by consulting firm STV, and concluded that "speeding up trains may not be possible on stretches of track that have outdated signaling technology... Some of the

ED SCHIPUL / FLICKR CC

The task force identified four areas of focus:

1. Reducing running times through straight tracks and interlockings
2. Improving running times through curves
3. Alleviating bottlenecks and fine-tuning schedules to optimize train movement
4. Updating speed signage to increase train operator confidence signal timers operate on a two-second delay, and the report states that delay cannot be reduced without causing a safety risk."

Another issue is that many train operators are fearful of driving at or above the posted speed limits, believing that signal timers — which put on the emergency brakes when a train goes too fast or gets too close to another train — aren't properly calibrated. As 6sqft previously reported, this became an issue "after two trains collided on the Williamsburg Bridge in 1995, killing a J-train operator and injuring dozens of riders." In response, the MTA instituted lower speed limits and altered signal systems to automatically trip train brakes.

Gov. Cuomo stated, "This is an impactful change. You drive the train faster, you will get where you are going faster. What do riders want? Get me where I'm going, get me there on a predictable timeline, get me there faster, keep me safe, let me be in a basic clean environment, and this can make a real change."

This story was provided to Metro through an agreement with 6sqft. Visit www.6sqft.com for more stories.

Construction kicks off at Google's new Hudson Square campus

Construction has officially kicked off at Google's massive new campus in Hudson Square. The tech company plans to open office space across three properties 315 Hudson Street, 345 Hudson Street, and 550 Washington Street, which formerly served as a freight terminal. The project involves a gut renovation of the terminal building and an addition of eight new floors. As CityRealty reported Tuesday, the northern sections of the St. John's Terminal building are now demolished.

ties Group and Google reached a lease agreement in July for the company to occupy roughly 1.3 million square feet of office space at 550 Washington Street. The addition will triple the 1934-constructed terminal's height from 80 to 232 feet.

According to CityRe-alty, the northern end of the terminal will be developed by Westbrook Partners and Atlas Capital Group separately, while Oxford plans to preserve the first three floors of the old structure.

Designed by COOKFOX and Adamson Associates, the redevelopment of St. John's Terminal includes modernizing the historic building with floor-to-ceiling windows, large floor plates, and planted roofs and terraces. Renderings reveal a glassy and metal building, with the original railroad tracks visible throughout the building.

Biden calls for Trump impeachment as U.S. partisan fight deepens Biden breaks silence over Ukraine controversy.

U.S. Democratic presidential contender Joe Biden called for the impeachment of his potential 2020 election foe Donald Trump for the first time on Wednesday, as a partisan fight over a congressional investigation of the Republican president deepened.

Biden, who is at the center of a controversy over Trump's dealings with Ukraine that led congressional Democrats to open an impeachment inquiry, had refrained from making an outright plea for impeachment. He said in an opinion piece over the weekend that he would let Congress do its job on impeachment.

During a campaign stop in New Hampshire, the current Democratic front-runner to face Trump in the presidential election took the gloves off.

"With his words and his actions, President Trump has indicted himself. By obstructing justice, refusing to reply with a congressional inquiry, he's already convicted himself," Biden said. "In full view of the world and the American people, Donald Trump has violated his oath of office, betrayed this nation and committed impeachable acts."

"To preserve our Constitution, our democracy, our basic integrity, he should be impeached."

Trump responded in real time on Twitter, using one of his nicknames for Biden.

"So pathetic to see Sleepy Joe Biden, who with his son, Hunter, and to the detriment of the American Taxpayer, has ripped off at least two countries for millions of dollars, calling for my impeachment – and I did nothing wrong."

The Democratic-led House of Representatives began impeachment proceedings against Trump last month over his attempts to have Ukraine's president investigate Biden and his son, Hunter Biden, who was on the board of a Ukrainian gas company.

Despite Trump's allegations, made without providing evidence, that Biden engaged in improper dealings in Ukraine, there are few signs the controversy has damaged the Democratic former vice president's 2020 prospects.

Public opinion polls, including those taken by Reuters/Ipsos, have shown Biden's support remaining relatively stable.

The White House on Tuesday declared its refusal to cooperate with the impeachment probe, describing it as a partisan attempt to hobble the president.

The three congressional committees leading the inquiry were working on final arrangements on Wednesday to interview a U.S. intelligence officer who filed a whistleblower complaint that led to their investigation.

The State Department this week abruptly blocked the U.S. ambassador to the European Union, who had been in touch with Ukrainian officials on Trump's behalf from speaking to the inquiry.

The investigation is focused on whether Trump used almost $400 million in congressionally approved aid to Ukraine as leverage to pressure Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky to begin an investigation of the Bidens.

Trump has denied wrongdoing and defended a July 25 phone call to Zelensky. REUTERS

NYPD seeks suspect in Hell's Kitchen rape

A man is accused of raping a woman who approached him to ask for directions, and now the NYPD wants the public's help finding him.

NYPD reported that a 31-year-old woman from Yonkers got lost in Hell's Kitchen and asked the suspect for directions.

That's when the attacker allegedly grabbed her by the arm and brought her to a building on 51st Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues. He allegedly forced her down the stairs into the basement where he carried out the assault.

He then left in the direction of 52nd Street and Broadway, police said.

The victim was taken to an area hospital for treatment. She reportedly suffered bruising to her right arm, her back and her right leg.

Decreasing U.S. job openings point to cooling labor market

U.S. job openings fell to a 1 1/2-year low in August and hiring declined, suggesting employment growth was slowing largely because of ebbing demand for labor as the economy loses momentum.

Despite the third straight monthly drop in vacancies reported by the Labor Department on Wednesday, job openings are still plenty enough to ease financial market fears of a looming recession. Job openings are being closely watched for signs of whether an erosion in business confidence, which has weighed on capital investment, is spilling over to hiring.

A 15-month trade war between the United States and China has hurt business confidence, leading to a retrenchment in business spending and a downturn in manufacturing. The trade war has stoked financial market fears of a recession.

"The labor market is slipping a little, but it's not flashing any recession signals yet," said Chris Rupkey, chief economist at MUFG in New York. "You can't have a recession with 7 million help wanted signs posted up in factory and store windows around the country."

Job openings, a measure of labor demand, dropped by 123,000 to a seasonally adjusted 7.05 million in August, the lowest level since March 2018, the government said in its monthly Job Openings and Labor Turnover Survey, or JOLTS.

Job openings have been trending lower this year since scaling an all-time high of 7.63 million in late 2018. The job openings rate fell to 4.4% in August from 4.5% in July.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

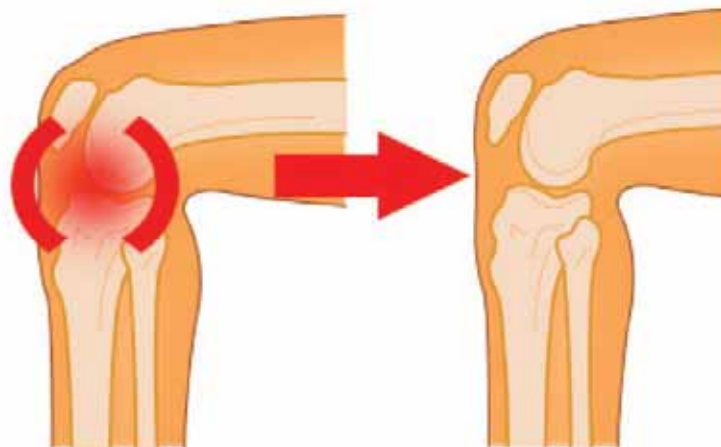

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

NBC reports that the man approached the boy and asked him, "Hey, where do you go to school?"

It was also reported that the incident took place at 190 West Tremont Avenue in the Bronx.

The suspect tried to engage the child in conversation and allegedly motioned for the boy to get into his two-door white Scion. The child refused to get into the car with a stranger.

The boy was unharmed and reported the incident once he got to school.

NBC also reported that a similar incident occurred in Brooklyn over the weekend, when men approached kids in Borough Park.

If you, or someone you know, know anything about these incidents, you are urged to call NYPD's Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477) or for Spanish, 1-888-57-PISTA (74782). You can also send in a tip via Twitter or go to Crimestoppers.com.

Ex-Trump aide Manafort not shielded by earlier conviction for similar crimes: N.Y. prosecutors Former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort must face mortgage fraud charges against him in New York, even though he is already serving a prison sentence after being convicted of similar federal crimes, New York state prosecutors said on Wednesday.

Manafort's lawyers had sought to dismiss the state charges in September, arguing that they subjected him to illegal double jeopardy, or prosecution of a person twice for the same offense.

"We continue to believe that the indictment should be dismissed in its entirety for the reasons stated in our motion," said Todd Blanche, a lawyer for Manafort.

"Notably, the District Attorney does not contest that the New York case arises out of the same transaction as the conduct for which Mr. Manafort was previously prosecuted by the Special Counsel. As we previously argued, we do not believe any exception under New York law applies and the indictment should be dismissed."

However, the office of Manhattan District Attorney Cyrus Vance said in a court filing that double jeopardy did not apply because the jury in Manafort's federal trial was hung on some of the charges, and because New York's mortgage fraud laws were designed to protect homeowners, while federal law was aimed at protecting banks.

The state case, Vance's office said, is "exactly the type of prosecution that New York's double jeopardy statute explicitly permits: a successive prosecution where the harms caused to New York were not redressed by the prior prosecution."

A lawyer for Manafort could not immediately be reached for comment.

Justice Maxwell Wiley is expected to rule on Manafort's motion on Dec. 18, when Manafort is due to appear in Manhattan Supreme Court.

Manafort faces 16 criminal counts in New York. The charges include mortgage fraud, conspiracy and falsifying records related to his efforts to obtain millions of dollars in loans on properties in New York and elsewhere between 2015 and 2017. REUTERS

QUEENS ECHOES

Some October evening, stand under the domed viaducts of the #7 train in Sunnyside. Lift your head and sing a long, high “ooooeee.” Listen to the notes bounce off the concrete ceiling, ringing on and on before fading into the dark.

This is the sound coveted by young men so many decades ago, who would gather at dusk to chant their doo-wop anthems of love, desire and devotion. The beautiful echoes surrounded them. Their harmonies blended gloriously. They thought their songs would never end.

The men are now old. Their songs a distant memory. But some evening, if you stand in just the right spot, close your eyes and listen, you can almost hear “Come Go With Me,” or “This Little Girl of Mine.” Until the clattering of steel wheels overhead shatters “The Still of the Night,” leaving only faint echoes of another time.

As the winner of two Emmys, three Golden Globes and countless other nominations, "Fargo" has proven to be one of the most popular television shows of recent memory.

That's exactly why its fourth season, which is set in 1950s Kansas City and stars Chris Rock, is so eagerly anticipated. Metro had the chance to sit down and talk to Noah Hawley, the creator and show-runner on all four seasons of "Fargo" about his directorial debut "Lucy In The Sky."

Right at the end of our conversation we asked Hawley, "When is 'Fargo' season 4 coming out?" Hawley responded, "It will be in the spring." It had previously been announced that production on "Fargo" season 4 will take place in Chicago, Illinois.

We also know that "Fargo" season 4 will see Rock playing the head of a crime family made up of African Americans who have fled the Jim Crow South. Rock's gangster soon becomes embroiled in a violent relationship with the Kansas City mafia.

As well as Rock, the massive ensemble for the fourth season of "Fargo" is rounded out by Timothy Olyphant, Uzo Abuba, Jeremie

Harris, Ben Whishaw, Jason Schwartzman, Jack Huston, Jessie Buckley, Salvatore Esposito, Andrew Bird and Amber Midthunder.

Hawley didn't go into too much detail about what makes this outing different to the previous seasons of "Fargo," but did note, "It is very different. It is huge. It is twice the size of any other season we have done."

Metro was also interested to learn more about the involvement of executive producers Joel and Ethan Coen, who wrote, produced and directed the Oscar winning 1996 crime comedy that the show takes its name from and is, at this point, very, very loosely based on.

"They're not that involved," explained Hawley. "But they're nice. They tolerate me."

We'll get to see how Hawley tips his hat to the Coen Brothers' incredible oeuvre when "Fargo" season 4 is finally released in the spring of 2020.

"The Office: A Musical Parody"

The creator of "The Office: A Musical Parody" gives the scoop on the wildly popular show. MOLLY GIVEN

For fans of the wildly popular and highly quotable TV show "The Office," there isn't much that can top the sarcastic humor, colorful characters and memorable one-liners — until now. Parody writers Bob and Tobly McSmith have spent the better part of their career creating epic parodies of some of your favorite shows including "Saved by the Bell" and "Friends," and now they have set their sights on the employees of the Dunder Mifflin Paper Company. What the comedic writers want to showcase with each musical parody is a highlight of all of the aspects that make the shows so memorable, along with some of the ridiculous antics that come with these pop-culture icons. Bob McSmith sat down with Metro to give the scoop on what to expect when attending the over-the-top shows and chat about why he hopes these parodies can help create an escape from the world, even just for an hour.

For fans of the shows you parody, what do you think this experience adds for them?

When we do parodies, it's always loving — it comes from a place of love. Tobly and I kind of grew up without a lot of friends so we were obsessed with TV and Comedy Central, and just comedy specifically. So a lot of the shows that we started with were shows we grew up watching. Like "Saved by the Bell," we always imagined ourselves at Bayside, and then when we got to high school we realized, well, that's not exactly what it's like. Also, "Friends," our last show, both [Tobly] and I moved to New York the same day and that was a huge reality crash being, like, "Wait, people don't have gigantic apartments? You don't have breakfast with your friends every single day?" So I think that's part of the fun of it for the people who come. It does come from a deep, deep loving place for this material, but it also does shed a light on the reality of it and makes you think, "Huh, this is kind of ridiculous."

What was it about "The Office" that drove you to parody the show?

This is our seventh musical parody, and while working on our previous shows we always had "The Office" on in the background. It was our happy place and a way to relax because it's still a great show to this day. It's so funny and so well written, and after doing "Friends" it seemed like the next logical step. It was something we loved and something we thought we could bring justice to, but it was also something we were a little scared of as well because we really did love the show that much. Everybody who's worked on the show is a huge fan of "The Office" and they all bring their own take to the table.

When you're creating the parodies, how do you come up with the story line?

We basically cover all 10 seasons in two hours and that takes place in a single day at the office. We cover pretty much every episode. I think at some point in the writing process literally every character who has ever been in "The Office" was in there, but as we were going on we had to start slimming them down. But you're still going to see everything you would want to see in an "Office" parody.

Would you say you have to be a fan of "The Office" to enjoy the show?

I think it definitely helps, especially with those deep jokes. But we have had people who have never seen "The Office" love the show itself. I think that's one of the things about the TV show, is that the themes are so universal. It's a story about family, it's a story about love and it's a story about people you work with.

What do you hope audiences take away from the show?

What Tobly and I really hope is that the show is an escape. Life now is so hard, you wake up every day pretty much thinking the world is going to end at any moment, so this is just a two-hour escape to spend with these characters you love. It's joyous, it's funny and it's heartfelt. Also, a message that Tobly and I really wanted to get through is when you spend your day at work, you spend so much time with these people who are now your family and your friends. Take time out of the day to say you love them, go to the watercooler and share a joke, or do a prank. Love the company of your company — that's what we really wanted to get across to people.

Catch "The Office: A Musical Parody" at 1627 Broadway, New York. For more information, tickets and showtimes visit theoffice-musical-parody.com

Curiosity finds an ancient oasis on Mars

A glance into the past

During the last trip through the Gale Crater on Mars, NASA's Curiosity Rover discovered evidence that makes scientists believe that there was an oasis at its base. Experts have described the possibility of a Martian past in a report recently published in Nature Geoscience magazine, in which they highlighted the study of rocks enriched with mineral salts found at that place. MWN

kilometers wide is the size of the Gale Crater.

Martian climate has changed

The evidence found by Curiosity and analyzed by scientists shows the possibility that climate on Mars has drastically changed. The natural events might have transformed the wetter environment of the planet into the frozen desert that it is now. Experts are now investigating how long this transition took and when it occurred. MWN

PANTORNO'S PERCH

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno

The New York Yankees made easy work of the Minnesota Twins, sweeping them out of the ALDS on Monday night in a 5-1 Game 3 victory.

That sounds like an awfully familiar script, doesn't it?

The Yankees have absolutely owned the Twins in October — possessing a 10-0 postseason record dating back to 2009. That record improves to 16-2 going back to 2003.

Sure, there were some dicey moments. Luis Severino got out of a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the second. Gleyber Torres made a ridiculous sliding stop in short right field to get Eddie Rosario out and escape the fifth inning with runners on first and second in fifth.

Then, of course, there was Didi Gregorius' diving catch with one out in the ninth with runners on first and second to preserve the healthy lead.

Let's be honest, I

NO LUCK NEEDED IN YANKS' 2019 SUCCESS

The Yankees are preparing for their second ALCS in three seasons behind a roster that was tweaked with invaluable role players rather than stars. GETTY IMAGES think we all overvalued the Twins heading into the postseason, anyway. No one necessarily picked them to beat the Yankees in the ALDS, but their stats were certainly inflated (101 wins, 307 home runs) because they played in an AL Central division that featured three 90-loss teams.

That's not taking anything away from the Yankees.

Not only did they persevere in those tight spots in Game 3, but they also continue to embody the "next-man-up" approach that has been their mantra all season.

We all know just how special this season is turning out to be; the campaign should result in Aaron Boone winning AL Manager of the Year Award.

After all, he was able to navigate a roster decimated by injuries — over 2,000 man games missed in 2019 — to 103 wins and the organization's first AL East title in seven years.

Sure, detractors will claim that the Yankees were just lucky or they play in a small ballpark, or they just stumbled upon the crazy depth that kept them in the running all season.

But it isn't that. It's something that's made the Yankees the envy of fans around Major League Baseball for decades now: competence.

From top-to-bottom, the Yankees have the right people in place to lead this organization and it starts with general manager Brian Cashman.

Now in his 22nd year as GM, Cashman followed the wishes of ownership to try and stay at or near the luxury tax threshold and pick up the support pieces that can put this organization over the top.

Cashman didn't go get Bryce Harper or Manny Machado. He didn't break the bank to try and sign Dallas Keuchel. He didn't try and make a huge splash at the trade deadline and deal more of his top prospects for added starting pitching help.

Instead, he and his staff did their homework and picked up seemingly minor pieces that made an enormous impact.

He acquired Mike Tauchman, DJ LeMahieu, and Cameron Maybin to join a supporting cast of no-names like Gio Urshela who were called upon when the injuries hit.

Boone was masterful in taking those injuries in stride, keeping the clubhouse loose, and getting the most out of every corner of the roster.

Just look at the stats from the ALDS and the blend of perceived talent and potential.

LeMahieu — who was written off in Colorado and thus believed to have nothing left in the tank after leaving Coors Field — followed up his MVP-worthy 2019 season with four RBIs in three games.

Didi Gregorius shook off major struggles at the end of the regular season to bat .400 with a team-leading six RBIs.

Gleyber Torres, at just 22, looked like a seasoned vet in the box, leading the team with a .417 batting average.

The journeyman outfielder Maybin, who is playing for his eighth MLB franchise in 13 years, socked a solo home run in the ninth inning on Monday night for some much-needed insurance.

Suddenly all the pressure doesn't have to be on the big boppers like Aaron Judge or Giancarlo Stanton or Edwin Encarnacion — at least for an ALDS series against the Twins.

Are the Yankees the best team in baseball?

They're up there, but I don't think they're better than the Astros, who will likely be their ALCS opponent starting this weekend. Houston has the most well-rounded roster in the game despite having issues with the Tampa Bay Rays, headlined by a fearsome trio of starting pitchers in Justin Verlander, Gerrit Cole and Zack Greinke that gives them a major advantage over the Yankees on paper.

But the Yankees have gone from "rebuilding" at the start of 2016 to their second ALCS appearance in three seasons.

And it has to do with everything but luck.

Shorthanded G-Men major underdogs vs. Pats

Even a full-strength Giants team was going to be up against it on Thursday night when they meet the New England Patriots in Foxborough.

Given the current state of the team, though, getting out of Massachusetts with a win in Week 6 would be more miraculous than anything.

The Giants are facing the prospect of taking the field without their top-three playmakers.

Saquon Barkley is approaching a return from a high-ankle sprain suffered in Week 3 but might just not be ready yet.

With backup running back Wayne Gallman on the injury report with a concussion, rookie quarterback Daniel Jones' run game could very well be a tandem of undrafted rookie Jon Hilliman, who began the season on the practice squad, and starting fullback Eli Penny.

Jones' aerial attack will also be plenty hampered, which is going to make keeping up with Tom Brady nearly impossible.

Tight end Evan Engram, who leads the team in receptions, is dealing with a knee issue that could sideline him while Sterling Shepard suffered his second concussion of the season on Sunday against the Vikings.

New York's short-handed offense will be facing a Patriots defense that is one of the best in the NFL.

They've allowed the fewest points, the second-fewest total yards, the second-fewest first downs, and the fewest passing touchdowns (none). The Patriots' defense also leads the NFL with 11 interceptions.

It's why the Giants are severe underdogs entering Thursday night. In fact, they haven't been this big of an underdog in almost 40 years.

Several Vegas sportsbooks are listing the Giants as 16 1/2-point underdogs against the Patriots. They were 16-point underdogs for their Oct. 19, 1980 matchup against the San Diego Chargers, where they went on to lose 44-7.

Would a scoreline like that be out of the realm of possibilities? There are plenty of folks out there that don't think so. JOE PANTORNO
